
These two components explain 63.13 % of the point variability.